About the National Seminar -

Role of Dr. B. R. Ambedkar in Nation Building
Bharat Ramnath Baba Sahab Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar, the chief architect of Indian Constitution, played a significant role in laying the foundation of democracy in India. His commitment for the cause of justice manifested in his conduct while he resigned as law minister on the issue of Hindu Code Bill relating to marriage, divorce and property rights of women. With the support of the Constituent Assembly he infused affirmative action and protective mechanism in the Constitution of the country to ensure social, economic and political democracy to Indians including downtrodden, Adivasis, Backward Classes, minorities and women. He firmly believed that political democracy cannot succeed without social and economic democracy. For him political democracy is not an end in itself, but the most powerful means to achieve the social and economic ideals in society. State socialism within the framework of parliamentary democracy can defeat dictatorship. Dr. Ambedkar was greatly concerned about the unity of the country. He had not slightest doubt in his mind also about the future evolution and ultimate shape of social, political and economic structure of India. He was quite convinced that given time and circumstances nothing in the world will prevent this unity of the country. He even hoped that despite the agitation of the Muslims for the partition of India someday enough light would dawn upon them and they too will begin to think that a united India will be better even for them. For unity of the country, he favours formation of unilingual states as against multi-lingual states. The unilingual states can foster the fellow-feeling which is the foundation of a stable state.
