(Unit—IV)

4. (a) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below : 5

One doesn't have to convince a school boy that holidays are necessary in our life. They always welcome holidays with excitement and joy. It would be more difficult to convince them about the importance of work and study. But we can't under estimate the value of holidays when they occur at regular intervals. They help us to have a diversion from routine work. A change of scene relaxes the mind and refreshes the body. Rest and recreation are significant in improving one's state of mind and removing the dull moments of monotony from one's life. Holidays are especially important for young people and for those engaged in hard mental work. Continuous work will injure one's health and cause a nervous breakdown. A short holiday, if rightly used will send us back to work with renewed Zeal and enthusiasm.
